The newly promoted	Cohort, with individual coaching	Ninety days, two to three hours a week	Cohorts of five to ten	A recent promotion into a leadership role.

WHAT IT IS

For the person who was excellent at the work and has just been handed a team. High-touch and in person, tailored to the individual and to how that organisation actually decides.

WHAT HAPPENS

- A dual-assessment baseline opens the programme.
- Four individual coaching sessions run alongside the cohort.
- A thirteen-week curriculum carries the group through the first ninety days.
- Live leadership labs put the material against real situations in the room.

WHAT YOU LEAVE WITH

- A first ninety days spent deliberately rather than survived.
- A peer group at the same altitude, which most newly promoted leaders do not have.
- An individual development plan grounded in their own assessment data.

BEST FOR

Technical and professional organisations promoting strong individual contributors into management.
